

Social Science and Medicine

Editor-in-Chief:

P. J. M. McEwan, Harvard Medical School

The journal exists as a medium of publication for important research and theoretical work in all areas of common interest to the socio-behavioural sciences and medicine.

Papers cover all those aspects of anthropology, economics, education, psychology, social work and sociology which directly relate to problems of mental and physical health, and all aspects of medicine including medical education and practice, psychiatry, public health and nursing studies which relate to any of the social sciences.

Social Science and Medicine publishes original reports of systematic studies and research in which at least one variable is concerned with medicine and medical education, as well as significant and relevant theoretical contributions.

Further features include book reviews, proceedings of symposia, monograph supplements, details of research and new developments in medical education. Publication is in English, French, German or Spanish.

What can you tell me about the pill

To help you inform your enquiring patients, Syntex have produced a booklet called 'By Arrangement Only'. It deals with all aspects of oral contraception that are likely to concern a woman contemplating this form of conception control. Its style is lucid and readable, neither too technical nor too simplified.

Syntex are manufacturers of the ultra-low dose conception regulator NORINYL-1—unique in its low dosage of both hormonal constituents and in the decade of clinical experience that supports them. Copies of 'By Arrangement Only' and further information about Norinyl-1 can be obtained from:
